STRIVING TO MAINTAIN EQUILIBRIUM, JAPAN NAMES ARMY GENERAL, AND AN ADMIRAL TO HEAD THE NEW REGIME

Tokyo Radio Admits That "Counter-Offensive of The U. S. . . . Was Further Increased in Intensity and War Situation Has Become More and More Critical"

By J. Lynn Leonard
(I. N. S. Foreign Writer)

Japan, striving to maintain equilibrium in the face of constant military reverses, today named both an army general and a navy admiral to head a regime replacing the government of ousted Premier Gen. Hideki Tojo.

The Tojo Cabinet fell after confessing its inability to deal with the existing war situation in which the United States daily is bringing the conflict closer to the shores of Japan.

Gen. Kuniaki Koiso, Governor-General of Japanese-occupied Korea, and Admiral Mitsumasa Yonai, former Japanese Premier, were chosen to form a new cabinet, the Jap Domei agency reported in a wireless report.

"The order to form the succeeding Cabinet was issued to Gen. Kuniaki Koiso and Admiral Mitsumasa Yonai on the afternoon of July 20," said the Domei report heard by the FCC.

A promise was then given of further important news late tonight.

Previously, official Jap broadcasts said, Emperor Hirohito had called upon Marquis Kido, Lord Keeper of the Privy Seal, to attempt to form a new and stronger government after Tojo and his ministers resigned en masse.

In informing the Japanese people themselves of Tojo's resignation in a broadcast made at 2 a. m. EWT today, the Tokyo radio admitted that the "counter-offensive of the United States . . . was further increased in intensity and the war situation has become more and more critical."

The Tokyo transmitter declared that the decision to change the government was reached as a result of Japan's determination to "march straight forward with the fullest speed for the destruction of the enemies, the United States and Britain."

DEMOCRATS ENTER SECOND SESSION WITH PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT'S TACTICS ASSAILED BY REBELLIOUS SOUTHERNERS; BITTERNESS SPREADS

By William K. Hutchinson
(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

CHICAGO, July 20—The Democratic convention entered its second session today with President Roosevelt's tactics assailed by rebellious Southerners, bitterness spreading through the party ranks and Vice-President Henry A. Wallace out in front in the race for second place on the fourth term ticket.

The President's convention managers forecast nomination of Senator Harry S. Truman, of Missouri, as Roosevelt's running-mate, but

GLEANED BY SCRIBES

A new message has just been received from Pvt. Carl Hunsicker, formerly of Kulpville, now a prisoner of war in Germany.

The word came through a short-wave radio broadcast from Germany, in which Hunsicker's message to his parents was read, stating that he is in "good health" and urging his family not to worry about him.

The parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lester B. Hunsicker, did not hear the broadcast, although they are accustomed to listening in on the prisoner of war messages from Germany. On the night the message came through, they were trying to tune in, but had some difficulty with reception.

Mr. and Mrs. Hunsicker have received letters and postcards from others who heard it. They came from Indiana, New Jersey, New York, and points nearer home.

Dr. Frederick Scull, of Langhorne, has learned that his brother, Major Howard M. Scull, was killed in a plane crash over the Isle of Man, Irish Sea, on July 4th.

Major Scull was a son of the Rev. B. A. Scull, at one time pastor of Calvary Methodist Church, Easton. He was graduated from Easton high school in 1931, and from Lafayette College in 1935. He was a member of the Theta Chi Fraternity.

In addition to his father and brother, Major Scull is survived by a sister, Mrs. Clayton Stanley, Washington, D. C.

A 9-year-old Eureka boy, returning home from a swimming party Monday with other young folks, was struck by an oil truck and is in a serious condition in Abington Memorial Hospital.

He is William Keim, son of Edgar Keim. The accident happened near Eureka on the County Line rd. The truck was driven by Enos L. Gehman, 46, of Souderton, according to Trooper J. J. Shovelin, of the Doylestown sub-station of State Police.

The boy, police said, and a group of his pals were walking east on County Line rd. when the side rack of the oil truck going west struck the boy as it passed and threw him to the road. Children were walking on both sides of the highway at the time.

A passing motorist took the injured boy to the U. S. Naval Base hospital at Pitcairn Field, where he received first aid and was transferred to Abington Hospital in a Navy ambulance.

Wallace actually led in pledged first ballot votes.

An International News Service poll showed Wallace had 513 first ballot votes with 587 necessary for nomination. Truman ran far behind with only 328½ pledged first ballot votes. The remainder were scattered among fourteen rival possibilities or uncommitted, with Senator Alben W. Barkley, of Kentucky in third place with 91 pledged votes.

Followers of Wallace and Truman were assailing their rival candidate in an intra-party row that threatened to carry over into November's election.

There remained a possibility that Wallace and Truman will beat each other out to defeat with Senator Barkley capturing the prize.

Roosevelt's convention managers, already bloodied by the defeat of their first choice—War Mobilization Director James E. Byrnes, of South Carolina—hoped to swing Truman's nomination by publication of a Roosevelt letter, accepting the Mississippi as his running-mate. Its publication may offset the earlier Roosevelt letter, in which the President said "I personally would vote for Wallace's renomination if I were a delegate to the convention."

In his second letter, the President said he would be "pleased to have Truman run with me on the party ticket and believe he would add real strength to the ticket." But the President went a little further and added that as a second choice, he would accept Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas, of Connecticut, as his running-mate.

Existence of the letter was challenged by Wallace's supporters. Senator Joseph E. Guffey, of Pennsylvania, and Senator Claude Pepper, of Florida, attacked Democratic National Chairman Robert E. Hannegan for spreading rumors about the letter. Both demanded that Hannegan make it public and both assailed the President's preference for Truman.

FILES ADJUDICATION IN RIEGEL ESTATE

A 19-Page Report Made By Judge Calvin S. Boyer As Chancellor

MUCH IS INVOLVED

DOYLESTOWN, July 20—A 19-page adjudication has been filed by Judge Calvin S. Boyer as chancellor in the equity suit of Irma D. Riegel and Ward V. Tolbert, trustees under the will of George E. Riegel, deceased, against Helen R. Oliver, and others, residuary devisees and legatees under the will of John L. Riegel, deceased, in which he dismissed the suit at the cost of the plaintiffs.

The suit was brought to have the title to a farm known as the "Wilson Farm" of 184 acres, located in Durham township and Riegelsville borough, and to 600 shares of Lehigh Valley Railroad stock declared to be vested in the George E. Riegel estate under the will of his father who died in 1893. The defendants claimed that the property passed to all the descendants jointly, under the residuary clause in the will.

John L. Riegel was a man of wealth and owned several farms. He left eight children and other descendants. In Item 6 of his will he bequeathed the property in dispute to his daughter, Ida Josephine Riegel, for life and after her death to her children, if any, absolutely; but, if said children all died without issue before reaching the age of 21, then to his son, George E. Riegel, absolutely.

He failed to state who should receive the property if his daughter Ida died without ever having had any children at all. Ida Riegel died in 1941, unmarried, and without children.

The chancellor held that, while the father possibly intended that George E. Riegel should have the property in that event, the will did not say so and that under the law, the court has no power to guess what the father might have intended and to insert the omission into the will for him; that if it did so, the court would be making the will for the decedent.

Bucks County Youths Enter Big Contest

Seven youths from Bucks County have enrolled in the fourth annual National Junior Vegetable Growers' Association $6,000 production and marketing contest. Prof. Grant B. Snyder, of Massachusetts State College, advisory chairman of the organization, announces.

The contestants are competing for a $500 national championship, a $200 regional award, ten $100 sectional scholarships and two $25 war bonds provided the association by the Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea Company. Prof. Snyder said. The winners will be decided on the basis of the efforts made by the contestants on studies of vegetable production and marketing methods, their vegetable projects and their community activities.

"The importance of more efficient vegetable production and marketing is gaining substantial interest among our coming generation of farmers," Prof. Snyder said. "This is clearly indicated by the increased enrollment in our contest which this year includes boys and girls from 44 states."

Among the contestants enrolled from this county are: Thomas Blair, Revere; Norman High, Doylestown; William Yerkes, Buckingham; James May, Bucksville; Robert Metzgar, Pineville; George Seabrook, Buckingham; and Joe Volwerk, Jr., Buckingham Valley.

PICK COMMITTEE TO SURVEY AREA FOR POST-WAR PLANS

Nucleus of Organization is Named and Will Develop Its Plans

TO ENLARGE GROUP

Three Named Will Select Others to Aid in Work Of the Committee

A dozen representative business men, industrialists and other community-minded individuals met last night in the Municipal Building to take the initiative and leadership in the battle against mass unemployment after the war.

Ways and means of attaining and maintaining high levels of employment and production by private business enterprise were considered for the area termed the "Bristol Industrial Area."

The nucleus of an executive committee was selected and this committee was empowered to enlarge itself and develop such an organization as is thought necessary to function in Bristol Borough, Bristol Township and Bensalem Township.

The committee named consists of E. Leslie Helwig, chairman; industry; A. H. Queen, business; Walter Pitzonka, agriculture.

Opening the meeting, H. Gordon Fromm, president of the Bristol Rotary Club, made it plain to those assembled that he was merely acting as chairman to call the group together to get things moving in this area.

Mr. Fromm said that "at present some 62 million persons are gainfully employed in the United States, including more than 10 millions in the armed services. These figures compare with a total of about 45 million gainfully employed in 1919, including 600,000 in the armed services. At that time, however, somewhere between six and nine million members of the working population were unemployed."

Those businesses which today are employing at peak levels will, of course, taper off at the end of the war.

It was stated that before the war there were approximately 5,000 jobs in Bristol with a population of about 12,000, whereas there are now an estimated 15,000 jobs. Sixty percent of these workers now gainfully employed will want to continue working after the war. True, many of those now employed here come from outside of the area, but there are others native to the area who are employed elsewhere, men who are in the armed services and others who will return here with the cessation of industrial activity elsewhere when war hostilities cease.

The committee of which the nucleus was formed last night is known as the Committee for Economic Development for the Bristol Industrial Area, and it is outlined for this committee to survey local business and industries in order to learn what the people are thinking about buying and doing when the war stops. The results of this survey are to be made available to business men. The committee is part of a similar committee national in scope and a sub-division of a Bucks county committee. It is a fact-finding body for the dissemination of information.

Push Deeper Into Heart of German Defenses

With the British Second Army in Normandy—Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's staff south from Caen is pushing deeper into the heart of German defenses today.

Nazi Field Marshal Gen. Erwin Rommel threw the Luftwaffe into the fight last night in a try to hit attacking armor and infantry. Belt after belt of gun defenses are doing their utmost to slow the progress along the Caen-Vimont road. Perier, southwest of Cagny on the Caen-Vimont road, was captured.

Bitter fighting continues to the west. The current offensive was officially described as a "small break-through of the main German defensive line" and not in terms of enormous mileage.

Claim Entire Nazi Defense Line Before Lwow Crumbling

London—German reports said today that the Russians have driven to Augustow, eight miles from the pre-war frontier of East Prussia, and Moscow dispatches claim the entire German defense line before the Polish rail city of Lwow is crumbling.

Transocon admitted that the Nazi defense line west of Kowel in Poland has been drawn back to the upper Bug river and that Soviet troops have crossed the railroad running southward from Kowel to Lwow, some 95 miles distant.

TRUTH FOR A CHANGE

Panic in the Nazi High Command reaches new peaks hourly as the homeland of the Nazis echoes to the sounds of an invading army for the first time since Hitler started this war.

For years the German people have been told all sorts of things—and very little of what they have been told was the truth. Propaganda Minister Goebbels saw to it that they were told only the things he figured would boost their morale in general or strengthen their support of the Nazi regime in particular.

Now Goebbels seems to be taking a somewhat different tack—he is letting the German people get snatches of the truth. And the truth is not very pleasant to German ears these days. But what is the man to do? It is difficult even for a master propagandist to keep up the pretense that victory is just around the corner at the moment an invading army is breaking through into the Fatherland.

A case in point is the broadcast to the Reich home front the other night by Lieut. Gen. Kurt Dittmar, the military commentator Goebbels uses as a breaker of bad news to the German civilian population. But the broadcast was not confined to bad news. It included adverse criticism of the German High Command and implied that Adolf Hitler's "intuitive" generalship was hardly what might be called flawless.

General Dittmar asserted that the high command's underestimation of the Russian potential for war and its subsequent miscalculation of Germany's strategic reserves had created a situation in which the Reich now is forced to fight on three fronts, "on every one of which the enemy enjoys considerable superiority in manpower and material."

General Dittmar added that the position regarding the Eastern Front was all the more menacing in that the threat was immediate and not softened by an "indefinite remoteness" in which the high command could possibly correct its previous errors. He warned that despite the Russian menace, the Western Front still represents the focal point of current military developments and that the decision sought there by the Allies might exert the greatest influence on the development of operations on all fronts. The great need now, he said, is the protection of German soil, and indicated that the only possibility of restoring a favorable situation lies in strengthening the whole front on a major scale—that is, wholesale withdrawals.

This is pretty blunt stuff for the German people to be hearing from an official commentator. It may be designed to shock the home front into a state of desperation for the defense of Germany itself, but it seems hardly designed to inspire confidence in the present leadership—and the Germans have been taught that there could be no better.

It was to be expected but hardly so soon. In Frankfurt, Ind., resides a man named Dewey Bricker.

Announcement of the ousting of Tojo and his ministers came from the Japanese Board of Information and was made public both through voice broadcasts and wireless dispatches by the Jap Domei Agency. The Federal Communications Commission recorded the Jap accounts.

In each plant. In the Emilie plant each department was represented by a bond salesman and, in addition, regular bond sales talks were given daily over the company's public address system, reaching every section of the plant. The Emilie Guard Force averaged the highest "per man" quota of the various departments, almost tripling their purchases made during the previous campaign.

In addition, the enthusiasm created by the special bond sales efforts boosted the payroll deduction quota over the 10% mark, with many of the employees now putting well over 10% of their salaries into war bonds each week. A large number of war saving stamps also were sold according to the final reports of the committees soliciting in each of the plants.

Employees of the company's swing shifts took part in the "Swing Shift" bond rally held at the Bristol Theatre last Friday evening, when many additional bonds were sold.

CHAPTER TWENTY-FOUR

Colin watched the puzzled Blair. "Anything more?"

"Only one thing. They're using a powerful current for something; the lights in the cabin flicker and go dim but there's no sound of a radio. Colin, something is happening up in that room, and the thought that Father could be a spy against his country is getting me down. I won't believe that—I can't. But what can I believe?" Earnestly, a little fearfully, she looked up at him. "What did Father say to you just now?"

"Very little."
"He's hiding something. He's—"
The voice was tremulous, and Colin laid a hand on her shoulder. "I know how you feel. There's nothing harder to do than what you're doing now—watching and waiting." He walked the cabin's length, then turned. "Dove's gone to Cross Lake. Do you suppose there might be a chance?"
She made a quick gesture of protest. "You mustn't. Father would hear you."

"I could go in by the chapel."
"They've kept the chapel locked, they've been on the watch, one or the other of them, night and day. Almost as if they suspect. Please—it's too big a risk. Can't you wait?"

Reluctantly he nodded. "I'll have to, I suppose. He began restlessly moving about the cabin again, then he asked, 'How soon do you start flying mail to Winnipeg?'"

"As soon as the ice is thick enough to land on skis."

"Good. You've got a job the very first trip. There's a picture hidden away in Alec's cabin—an old picture of a group of aviators in the first World War, and one of the men in it looks like Dove. I wanted to turn it over to the Army when I was in Winnipeg, but hadn't a chance. I can't get it to the mails, but we've got to take that picture traced. It's going to be your job to take that picture down and get it into the right hands—someone we can trust to follow through and keep his mouth shut."

"Then I think I know where to take it—to Colonel Dowling in military intelligence. He was up here with his daughter last summer. I guided them. He'd be safe, Colin." Blair's voice was recapturing its old eager ring, and her eyes were bright again with interest.

Looking down into her darkly glowing eyes, Colin pondered: because of one woman he had almost decided to quit Learmonth; because of another, he knew he would not. Whatever the future might hold, he and Blair were allies. "You look so serious." Her voice brought him back.

He laughed. "I was thinking that there's no one in the world I can be myself with so completely as I can with you. You're a grand pal, a—"

She laid her hand against his mouth. "Call me 'little sister' again, and I'll scream."

That night the storm broke. Howling down from out the north,

Invite Britishers to Witness Battle Against Bombs

London—Londoners and British civilians of southern England continuously under fire from German flying bombs have been invited by the anti-aircraft command to take a trip along the southern coast to see how Hitler's "doodlebugs" are being dealt with by gunners and fighter pilots.

Southern England and the London area were again attacked last night and this morning and to many people around the capital of the British Empire it seemed that most of the flying bombs were traveling along a fresh route. There is every indication that the bombing of Pas de Calais and the railroads serving that area has checked the attack from that direction.

During the past two days and nights there has been sufficient evidence to indicate that most of the flying bombs have been launched from the most northerly parts of France or even Belgium.

The first great winter blizzard whipped across the land, driving men and animals to shelter. Steadily, through the night, the temperature fell, and all next day no living thing went forth, while snow sifted high amid the spruce clumps, and ice crept out from the shallow waters of the shoreline to meet across the channels, covering rivers and lakes with an ever-thickening cap that would soon become a highway for trapper and hunter.

By early morning of the second day the snow had ceased, and torn clouds revealed the cold, sparkling stars, but hour by hour the grip of winter tightened, and with the sunrise Learmonth looked out upon a changed white world—the winter world of the North.

The day after freeze-up, Colin turned the photograph over to Blair, and on her first trip to Winnipeg she had delivered it into Colonel Dowling's hands. "He's having copies made," she told Colin. "He wants to send one of them to London. It may be two or three weeks before we hear anything."

Colin nodded. "The minute you do hear, fly over to the cabin. And remember, if Dove makes another night trip, let me know. Until then, the safest thing for us is to work at our jobs. Your job is flying the mail; mine is trapping."

And the next day he and Alec began to trap. Hanging his steel traps in heavy balsam smoke until the resin had obliterated all man scent, Colin began work ten miles back from his cabin, following a small stream that he had known in earlier days. The main trapping was for cross and red fox on the Upper Nelson, where Olsen had warned Alec to keep away. Alec himself was plainly nervous when they entered that forbidden territory.

"What happens if we meet Olsen?" he asked once.

"That," Colin answered, "depends on him."

Before many days, their lines extended for miles along the streams and up over the ridges, while the great white calm of winter lay across the land.

Colin chafed because nothing was happening: No word from Winnipeg about the photograph; Dove showed no signs of resuming his midnight trips up the lake, and two weeks had passed since freeze-up.

Then, without warning, on December 7, the settlement was shocked by the news flashed up from Winnipeg—the Japanese had attacked the American fleet at Pearl Harbor. Colin heard it late that afternoon from a trapper, and his mind flashed back to the map he had seen in Dove's secret room: it had been a map of Pearl Harbor. The other map had shown the Atlantic coast: would that mean an attack there by the Germans?

Hurrying to Learmonth, he questioned Selkirk and Blair about Dove's activities, but there had been no change. Beyond expressing profound horror at the Japanese treachery, Dove went quietly on preparing his school for Christmas.

intendent of public schools, was presented as chairman of the Bucks County Committee.

Mr. Boehm outlined the six areas in Bucks county, namely—Quakertown, Sellersville-Perkasie, Doylestown, Langhorne-Newtown, Morrisville-Yardley, and the Bristol area. The importance of the Bristol area in comparison to the other part of the county was stressed, and the need for such an organization here

It is to be the function of the committee here to interview industrialists and business men in an effort to learn what their needs will be after the war, and what plans they are contemplating. By this it is reasoned that a picture of the "after-the-war" scene can be obtained and that such will aid in the solution of the anticipated problems.

Many industries, small businesses and individuals plan repairs and improvements after the war and these will necessitate manpower and materials. It is such projects as these that will aid in maintaining high levels of employment and cushion the drop from war peak employment.

Cooling Desserts For Warm Weather Days

On these hot weather days, do you let the sun do the broiling, while you tuck something cold and frosty into the refrigerator to tempt heat-wilted appetites? First add in your campaign to outwit the thermometer is that cooling fruit—the lemon. "Keep a bag of lemons on hand" is the best of hot weather advice. Then you always have the "makings" for temperature-reducing drinks and foods—lemonade, fruit punch, lemon dressed salads, and desserts such as the following:

Lemon Gelatine Chiffon Pie
Perhaps this recipe is already in your files. With eggs plentiful, now's the time to serve it. It's mighty good on a warm summer day.

1/2 cup lemon juice
1/2 teaspoon salt
3/4 cup sugar
4 eggs
1 tablespoon (1 envelope) unflavored gelatine
1/4 cup cold water
1 teaspoon grated lemon peel.
Cook lemon juice, salt, 1/4 cup of the sugar and the egg yolks in a double boiler until of custard consistency. Soften gelatine in the cold water. Add to hot custard and stir to dissolve. Add lemon peel. Cool. When mixture begins to thicken, fold in the egg whites, stiffly beaten with 1/2 cup of the sugar. Fill a baked or crumb pie shell, 9-inch size, and chill. Top, if liked, with sweetened whipped evaporated milk, just before serving. Sprinkle lightly with additional grated flakes of lemon peel.

Cereal Pie Shell
2 tablespoons melted butter or other shortening
3/4 cup finely crushed corn flakes
1 tablespoon sugar
1 tablespoon water.
Add butter to cereal, tossing lightly to mix. Dissolve sugar in water and sprinkle over cereal mixture, tossing lightly again. Press into bottom and sides of 8- or 9-inch pie plate. Bake in moderate oven (375 degrees F.) 8 to 10 minutes.

Lemon Frozen Cream Sundaes
Instead of serving plain ice cream, treat your family to a sundae dessert these warm evenings and see how surprised and delighted they will be. The recipe that follows is for a no-cream ice cream made with lemon juice and top milk. Corn syrup is used for part of the sweetening so that sugar points are saved. For the sundae topping, use caramel syrup, corn syrup, maple syrup, or sweetened fruit—peaches, strawberries, bananas.

2 eggs
1/2 cup sugar
1/2 cup light corn syrup
2 cups top milk
1/4 cup lemon juice
1 teaspoon grated lemon peel.
Beat eggs until lemon-colored. Add sugar gradually until mixture becomes a thick, custard-like consistency. Combine with remaining ingredients. Freeze in refrigerator tray at lowest temperature until stiff. When frozen, remove to a cold bowl and whip with an electric or hand beater until light and creamy. Return quickly to freezing tray. Finish freezing. This one stirring is all that is needed. Hold at middle control for serving. Makes 1 quart—serves 6 to 8.

Faith Clarke's SHOPPING TIPS FOR BUDGETEERS

DON'T RUN SHORT of vegetable seasonings. When you can't get fresh onions, parsley, celery, etc., you can now get them in boxed flakes, very, very cheaply. They're dehydrated, of course, and delicious when water returns them to their natural, practically fresh form. The Snellenburg Food Shop on Chestnut St. is noted for its unusual seasonings and sauces, so that the dehydrated flakes are only part of a tempting story. The flakes are priced as follows—boxes of onions, 10c each, $1.19 a doz.; parsley, 9c each, $1.05 a doz.; celery, 9c each, $1.05 a doz.; mixed vegetable flakes, 15c per box, $1.55 a doz. Try them and then order in dozen lots for convenience. (1st fl.)

GRAND TOWELS—turkish, Martex, just right weight, $1 each for bath size, 22x44 in.; 50c for generous hand size; 19c for face cloths; matching bath mats, $1.59. Beautiful shades of green, peach, rose, blue, gold covered with a brocade design of white flowers. I was delighted to be told about these, just as I am sure you are. I hope you get some! Snellenburg Towel Dept. (2nd fl.)

THE VERY THING—an outdoor card-table set with an iron frame and a glass top, and handsome! The comfortable, artistic iron-framed chairs—four of 'em—have tied-on canvas seats and backs. Use the set on the lawn, the porch, in the house. It looks extra smart in all three places. Well worth $49.98 a set. Canvas comes in beautiful sport colors—strawberry red, sun yellow, the right blue, etc. Use for games or feasts! See these sets in that fine grouping of outdoor furniture on the Snellenburg fourth floor.

HOTNESS GIFTS abound in the China and Glassware Dept. of the Snellenburg Store. None is prettier, however, than the sparkling glass or gay, painted china and pottery candy jars and boxes on one particular table. Their prices range from $1.39 to $7.49. There's a wide variety—including clear crystal and both pale cranberry and deeper ruby glass. Also there are pretty glass violin-shaped boxes, in colors. Some of these several fascinating containers are quite modern, others charming reproductions of antiques. Every house should have one or two candy jars, yours included. (3rd fl.)

P.S. Shop at this friendly store—Market from 11th to 12th, thru to 125-29 Chestnut St., Phila. Or order by mail. Or 'phone free (5c, 10c and 15c out-of-town calls only.) Clippings appreciated. Penna. number, ENTERprise 10160; New Jersey, WX-1150. Cheers! Faithfully, FAITH

AN OLD FAMILY CUSTOM is being revived—that of ordering or taking home candy for the week-end. It sweetens dispositions and creates good cheer and I'm all for it. The Snellenburg Candy Dept. in the Market St. Store is famous for home candies. Just now, among other luscious goodies, you may order or buy real paper-shell Jordan almonds at $1.50 a lb. (these make swanky hostess gifts, too!); full cream vanilla or chocolate fudge at 79c a lb.; chocolate and vanilla cream caramels at 79c a lb.; melt-in-your-mouth mint bubbles (light as air), 49c for a generous-size box; English-style toffee, separately wrapped, and in several flavors, at $1 a pretty box of 1 1/4 lbs. (1st fl.)

OUTDOOR ENTERTAINING always makes a hit. Guests fed on porch, lawn or in the woods will remember your hospitality longer than formal, expensive entertaining. Even a city backyard should have its grill, and just the family will enjoy using it frequently. The Snellenburg Outdoor Furnishings Dept. has the best assortment of grills I've found—both simple and more elaborate table types. Some of the prices are $5.95, $16.95, $52.50, $77.50. The two latter models have stone tables, and the $77.50 one has a roasting spit that turns! Add to your summer enjoyment. (4th floor)

A WEEK-END present for your hostess, or for your own dressing table, is the charmingly packaged combination of LaCrosse glycerated polish remover in double-size bottle, and a regular-size bottle of LaCrosse color-perfect nail polish, plus two manicure sticks. All in a peasant-decorated cardboard cart. The polish may be exchanged for any shade. Charming? $1 and 20% tax. Snellenburg Toiletries Dept. (1st fl.)

The attractive lighter and packet will be mailed free the world over by the accommodating Smoke Shop on the first floor of the Snellenburg Store. $2.20. ## THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS

By FRANK R. KENT

war but that isn't so. The war is the excuse for his candidacy and the war, along with himself as "Commander in Chief," will envelop this convention from the start. It will saturate the platform and highly favor every speech. Nothing will be left undone to rivet the wholly unsound but plausible argument that the winning of the war depends altogether upon the re-election of the "Commander in Chief." But, once the Commander in Chief is renominated it will be seen that the reliance for his re-election is not upon the war argument at all, but upon certain very concrete and easily recognized political assets that have nothing to do with the war.

ONE HAS ONLY to circulate around these Chicago hotels to understand what they are. It isn't only that the presence of the CIO lobbyists and the professional liberals at once recall Attorney General Biddle's famous declaration that "the New Deal is a political party tied in with the labor movement under an able political leader," but there are conspicuously in evidence others whom the idealistic Mr. Biddle did not mention but who nonetheless represent the indispensable political base upon which the Roosevelt chances rest. Important among these are the hard-faced, extremely practical bosses from New York, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Jersey City, and generally unsavory machine Chicago, Albany and other large cities, who have waxed fat on Federal patronage for the past 12 years and are strongly averse to any change in the Presidency. —O— THEN, THE presence of many high Federal officials recalls the fact that there are now on the Federal pay roll more than 3,500,000 persons—a vast increase since 1940—an increase which the practical politicians say to a large degree compensates for the old WPA, a conceded factor in the Roosevelt elections of 1936 and 1940. In addition, of course, there are in the country a great many emotional people to whom Mr. Roosevelt is a shining hero and who are unwaveringly for him regardless of what he is, or says, or does. Take all these elements represented here—the labor bosses, the city machines, the State machines, the Negroes (who though far less solid than in 1940 are still favorably inclined), plus the President's personal emotional and unreasoning following, and the formidable nature of his support for a fourth term must be conceded. IT IS NOT surprising that confidence is pretty high here, nor that the betting odds favor the fourth term. But, among some of the wiser of the practical politicians there is an undercurrent of apprehension. These recognize the danger of holding on to high office too long. They know that resentments rapidly accumulate each year and that a point can be reached at which the people become just "fed up." They concede the possibility that the point may be reached concerning the Roosevelts in November. A good many by-elections and the general Republican trend of the last two years give some ground for thinking so. It is the sort of thing that can't be told until the votes are counted, but it is the real Roosevelt danger. It easily could wipe out all his assets.

PITTSBURGH—(INS)—Marriage was the latest adventure of Pvt. Jose P. Tugab, 23, thought to be the last survivor of General MacArthur's Scouts in the Philippines. The young Filipino, who fought on Bataan and escaped from a Jap ship, married Betty Wilson, 23, of Pittsburgh.

"Good Soldier"

The proudest title in the Army

IT CONSISTS of two simple words. Yet every soldier who's worth his salt covets it. This title is simply: "Good Soldier." It isn't just happenstance that so many women in the WAC have earned this title—the proudest in the Army. For wherever Wacs are working, both here and overseas, there you find a job well done. And done with a spirit so gallant and fine that high Army officers everywhere say of the WAC... "They're soldiers. Good soldiers!"

Lord, open our eyes! While we are here in this place of shadow and gloom and trial, help us to work steadily, bravely, hopefully; may we not mourn as the pagans do, falling down with fear in the day of adversity; in that day make us strong, that in its darkness we may illustrate Thy grace and the fullness of Thy love. Direct all men who are in perplexity, comfort all who are in sorrow, give rest to those who are weary, too weary to pray; and give comfort of a special kind to those whose griefs are of the heart, of the spirit, which cannot well be spoken, and yet which tear the soul and wound it, and fill it with despair. We pray in Jesus' precious name. Amen.

SMOOTHNESS SECRET IN FROZEN DESSERT: KEEP CRYSTALS SMALL

By Mary Jacoby Fleetham
(Home Economics Representative)

Though whipping cream is still war short, homemade ice cream and similar frozen desserts may be features of family meals this summer if the cook knows how to use thin cream or milk in mixtures that will freeze successfully. Such frozen desserts may not be so rich or quite so smooth as those of the pre-war days made largely of whipping cream but they can be refreshing and delicious.

The important secret of smoothness in a frozen dessert is keeping the ice crystals small. The larger the crystals, the rougher and icier the product. The water in the mixture is what freezes and forms the crystals, so smoothness depends on distributing the water in separate fine particles. Air bubbles whipped in help to do this, as does the fat in the cream and thickeners like gelatin, eggs, flour or cornstarch. Frozen custard is a good choice this summer when eggs are plentiful. The egg yolks help thicken the mixture and the stiffly beaten whites add air bubbles just as whipped cream does.

Several tips for making mixtures that will freeze smoothly in refrigerator trays are: When more thin cream is used, more thickeners are needed; To keep crystals small the mixture may be taken from the refrigerator when partly frozen, whipped, and then returned for final freezing. Rapid freezing also helps keep the mixture smooth, so the freezing compartment of the refrigerator should have as little frost on it as possible and the cage should be set for a low temperature.

Most housewives have discovered that the cream at the very top of the bottle of milk is thick enough to whip. Just one cup of this thick cream is enough for a vanilla ice cream mixture to serve 6 or 8 people.

For the recipe file:
Vanilla Ice Cream

1 1/4 cup milk
1 cup cream whipped
1/2 cup sugar
2 eggs
1 teaspoon gelatin
1 teaspoon vanilla
Mix milk, sugar, egg yolks and gelatin. Cook to custard and cool.

Many sufferers relieve nagging backache quickly, only to discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys. The kidneys are the body's "house-keeping" organs, filtering out and eliminating the excess acids and waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints of urine each day.

When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up at night, swelling, puffiness, frequent urination, headache and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes accompany these symptoms. Something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 50 years. They're happy pills that help the 15 miles of kidney flush out poisons, cleanse your blood, and prevent your kidneys from wasting away. Get Doan's Pills.

STRIVING TO MAINTAIN EQUILIBRIUM, JAPAN NAMES ARMY GENERAL, AND AN ADMIRAL TO HEAD THE NEW REGIME

Tokyo Radio Admits That "Counter - Offensive of The U. S. . . . Was Further Increased in Intensity and War Situation Has Become More and More Critical"

By J. Lynn Leonard
(I. N. S. Foreign Writer)

Japan, striving to maintain equilibrium in the face of constant military reverses, today named both an army general and a navy admiral to head a regime replacing the government of ousted Premier Gen. Hideki Tojo.

The Tojo Cabinet fell after confessing its inability to deal with the existing war situation in which the United States daily is bringing the conflict closer to the shores of Japan.

Gen. Kuniaki Koiso, Governor-General of Japanese-occupied Korea, and Admiral Mitsumasa Yonai, former Japanese Premier, were chosen to form a new cabinet, the Jap Domei agency reported in a wireless report.

"The order to form the succeeding Cabinet was issued to Gen. Kuniaki Koiso and Admiral Mitsumasa Yonai on the afternoon of July 20," said the Domei report heard by the FCC.

A promise was then given of further important news late tonight.

Previously, official Jap broadcasts said, Emperor Hirohito had called upon Marquis Koichi Kido, Lord Keeper of the Privy Seal, to attempt to form a new and stronger government after Tojo and his ministers resigned en masse.

In informing the Japanese people themselves of Tojo's resignation in a broadcast made at 2 a. m. EDT today, the Tokyo radio admitted that the "counter-offensive of the United States . . . was further increased in intensity and the war situation has become more and more critical."

The Tokyo transmitter declared that the decision to change the government was reached as a result of Japan's determination to "march straight forward with the fullest speed for the destruction of the enemies, the United States and Britain."

A new message has just been received from Pvt. Carl Hunsicker, formerly of Kulpsville, now a prisoner of war in Germany.

The word came through a short-wave radio broadcast from Germany, in which Hunsicker's message to his parents was read, stating that he is in "good health" and urging his family not to worry about him.

The parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lester B. Hunsicker, did not hear the broadcast, although they are accustomed to listening in on the prisoner of war messages from Germany. On the night the message came through, they were trying to tune in, but had some difficulty with reception.

Mr. and Mrs. Hunsicker have received letters and postcards from others who heard it. They came from Indiana, New Jersey, New York, and points nearer home.

FILES ADJUDICATION IN RIEGEL ESTATE

A 19-Page Report Made By Judge Calvin S. Boyer As Chancellor

MUCH IS INVOLVED

DOYLESTOWN, July 20—A 19-page adjudication has been filed by Judge Calvin S. Boyer as chancellor in the equity suit of Irma D. Riegel and Ward V. Tolbert, trustees under the will of George E. Riegel, deceased, against Helen R. Oliver, and others, residuary devisees and legatees under the will of John L. Riegel, deceased, in which he dismissed the suit at the cost of the plaintiffs.

The suit was brought to have the title to a farm known as the "Wilson Farm" of 184 acres, located in Durham township and Riegelsville borough, and to 600 shares of Lehigh Valley Railroad stock declared to be vested in the George E. Riegel estate under the will of his father who died in 1893. The defendants claimed that the property passed to all the descendants jointly, under the residuary clause in the will.

John L. Riegel was a man of wealth and owned several farms. He left eight children and other descendants. In Item 6 of his will he bequeathed the property in dispute to his daughter, Ida Josephine Riegel, for life and after her death to her children, if any, absolutely; but if said children all died without issue before reaching the age of 21, then to his son, George E. Riegel, absolutely.

He failed to state who should receive the property if his daughter Ida died without ever having had any children at all. Ida Riegel died in 1941, unmarried, and without children.

The chancellor held that, while the father possibly intended that George E. Riegel should have the property in that event, the will did not say so and that under the law, the court has no power to guess what the father might have intended and to insert the omission into the will for him; that if it did so, the court would be making the will for the decedent.

With the British Second Army in Normandy—Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's staff south from Caen is pushing deeper into the heart of German defenses today.

Bucks County Youths Enter Big Contest

Seven youths from Bucks County have enrolled in the fourth annual National Junior Vegetable Growers' Association $6,000 production and marketing contest. Prof. Grant B. Snyder, of Massachusetts State College, advisory chairman of the organization, announces.

The contestants are competing for a $500 national championship, a $200 regional award, ten $100 sectional scholarships and two $25 war bonds provided the association by the Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea Company, Prof. Snyder said. The winners will be decided on the basis of the efforts made by the contestants on studies of vegetable production and marketing methods, their vegetable projects and their community activities.

"The importance of more efficient vegetable production and marketing is gaining substantial interest among our coming generation of farmers," Prof. Snyder said. "This is clearly indicated by the increased enrollment in our contest which this year includes boys and girls from 44 states."

Among the contestants enrolled from this county are: Thomas Blair, Revere; Norman Hlgh, Doylestown; William Yerkes, Buckingham; James May, Buckeville; Robert Metzgar, Pineville; George Scarborough, Buckingham, and Joe Volwerk, Jr., Buckingham Valley.

PICK COMMITTEE TO SURVEY AREA FOR POST-WAR PLANS

Nucleus of Organization is Named and Will Develop Its Plans

TO ENLARGE GROUP

Three Named Will Select Others to Aid in Work Of the Committee

A dozen representative business men, industrialists and other community-minded individuals met last night in the Municipal Building to take the initiative and leadership in the battle against mass unemployment after the war.

Ways and means of attaining and maintaining high levels of employment and production by private business enterprise were considered for the area termed the "Bristol Industrial Area."

The nucleus of an executive committee was selected and this committee was empowered to enlarge itself and develop such an organization as is thought necessary to function in Bristol Borough, Bristol Township and Bensalem Township.

The committee named consists of E. Leslie Helwig, chairman; industry; A. H. Queen, business; Walter Pitzenko, agriculture.

Opening the meeting, if Gordon Fromm, president of the Bristol Rotary Club, made it plain to those assembled that he was merely acting as chairman to call the group together to get things moving in this area.

Mr. Fromm said that "at present some 62 million persons are gainfully employed in the United States, including more than 10 millions in the armed services. These figures compare with a total of about 46 million gainfully employed in 1940, including 600,000 in the armed services. At that time, however, somewhere between six and nine million members of the working population were unemployed."

Those businesses which today are employing at peak levels will, of course, taper off at the end of the war.

It was stated that before the war there were approximately 5,000 jobs in Bristol with a population of about 12,000, whereas there are now an estimated 15,000 jobs. Sixty percent of these workers now gainfully employed will want to continue working after the war. True, many of those now employed here come from outside of the area, but there are others native to the area who are employed elsewhere, men who are in the armed services and others who will return here with the cessation of industrial activity elsewhere when war hostilities cease.

The committee of which the nucleus was formed last night is known as the Committee for Economic Development for the Bristol Industrial Area, and it is outlined "or this committee to survey local business and industries in order to learn what the people are thinking about buying and doing when the war stops. The results of this survey are to be made available to business men. The committee is part of a similar committee national in scope and a sub-division of a Bucks county committee. It is a fact-finding body for the dissemination of information."

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS

By FRANK R. KENT
(Distributed by McNaught Syndicate, Inc.)

Only One Issue

Chicago, July 20. AT THIS Democratic convention, the 29th national gathering of the party, one large pregnant fact protrudes. More than ever before in our political history the issues of this campaign are bound up in a single man. His name, of course, is Franklin D. Roosevelt.

IT MAKES NO difference whom this gathering nominates for Vice-President, nor what kind of platform it adopts. Mr. Roosevelt is the issue; Mr. Roosevelt is all the issues. There isn't anything new about that. It was true in 1936 and in 1940. It is even more true this time. He isn't here and he will not be here, but that makes no difference. The people in November will vote either for or against Mr.

Roosevelt because they either like and trust him or they dislike and distrust him. Moreover, a relatively insignificant number of voters on either side will be changed by reason or by events between now and November.

THIS IS NOT to say that all the party labor for the next four months will be wasted. It is possible to do very effective work in registration, in getting the voters to the polls, in building up enthusiasm, in guarding against mistakes, in undercover expenditure of money, in oiling the local machines, and in many other ways. It is to say that most of the oratory will be wasted, most of the literature will be worthless and extremely few souls will be saved by the political evangelists in either party—fewer, even, than usual. This is not a campaign of reason—it is almost entirely a campaign of prejudice.

IT HAS become a general assumption that if Mr. Roosevelt is re-elected it will be because of the

TRUTH FOR A CHANGE

Panic in the Nazi High Command reaches new peaks hourly
as the homeland of the Nazis echoes to the sounds of an invading army for the first time since Hitler started this war.

For years the German people have been told all sorts of things —and very little of what they have been told was the truth.
Propaganda Minister Goebbels
saw to it that they were told only the things he figured would boost their morale in general or strengthen their support of the Nazi regime in particular.

Now Goebbels seems to be taking a somewhat different tack
—he is letting the German people get snatches of the truth. And the truth is not very pleasant to German ears these days. But what is the man to do? It is difficult even for a master propagandist to keep up the pretense that victory is just around the corner at the moment an invading army is breaking through into the Fatherland.

A case in point is the broadcast to the Reich home front the other night by Lieut. Gen. Kurt Dittmar, the military commentator Goebbels uses as a breaker of bad news to the German civilian population. But the broadcast was not confined to bad news. It included adverse criticism of the German High Command and implied that Adolf Hitler's "intuitive" generalship was hardly what might be called flawless.

General Dittmar asserted that the high command's underestimation of the Russian potential for war and its subsequent miscalculation of Germany's strategic reserves had created a situation in which the Reich now is forced to fight on three fronts, "on every one of which the enemy enjoys considerable superiority in manpower and material."

General Dittmar added that the position regarding the Eastern Front was all the more menacing in that the threat was immediate and not softened by an "indefinite remoteness" in which the high command could possibly correct its previous errors. He warned that despite the Russian menace, the Western Front still represents the focal point of current military developments and that the decision sought there by the Allies might exert the greatest influence on the development of operations on all fronts. The great rue now, he said, is the protection of German soil, and indicated that the only possibility of restoring a favorable situation lies in strengthening the whole front on a major scale—that is, wholesale withdrawals.

This is pretty blunt stuff for the German people to be hearing from an official commentator. It may be designed to shock the home front into a state of desperation for the defense of Germany itself, but it seems hardly designed to inspire confidence in the present leadership—and the Germans have been taught that there could be no better.

It was to be expected but hardly so soon. In Frankfurt, Ind., resides a man named Dewey Bricker.

In each plant. In the Emille plant each department was represented by a bond salesman and, in addievery section of the plant. The Emille Guard Force averaged the highest "per man" quota of the various departments, almost tri-

the previous campaign.

In addition, the enthusiasm crequota over the 10% mark, with many of the employees now putting well over 10% of their salaries into number of war saving stamps also were sold according to the final reports of the committees soliciting

in each of the plants.

Employees of the company's swing shifts took part in the

the Bristol Theatre last Friday evening, when many additional bonds were sold.

Invite Britishers to Witness Battle Against Bombs

London—Londoners and British civilians of southern England continuously under fire from German flying bombs have been invited by the anti-aircraft command to take a trip along the southern coast to see how Hitler's "doodlebugs" are being dealt with by gunners and fighter pilots.

Southern England and the London area were again attacked last night and this morning and to many people around the capital of the British Empire it seemed that most of the flying bombs were traveling along a fresh route. There is every indication that the bombing of Pas de Calais and the railroads serving that area has checked the attack from that direction.

During the past two days and nights there has been sufficient evidence to indicate that most of the flying bombs have been launched from the most northerly parts of France or even Belgium.

CHAPTER TWENTY-FOUR

Colin watched the puzzled Blair.
"Anything more?"

"Only one thing. They're using a powerful current for something;
the lights in the cabin flicker and go dim but there's no sound of a radio. Colin, something is happening up in that room, and the thought that Father could be a spy against his country is getting me down. I won't believe that—I can't. But what can I believe?" Earnestly, a little fearfully, she looked up at
him. "What did Father say to you just now?"

"Very little."

"He's hiding something. He's—"

The voice was tremulous, and Colin laid a hand on her shoulder.
"I know how you feel. There's nothing harder to do than what you're doing now—watching and waiting." He walked the cabin's length, then turned. "Dove's gone to Cross Lake. Do you suppose there might be a chance?"

She made a quick gesture of protest. "You mustn't. Father would hear you."

"I could go in by the chapel."

"They've kept the chapel locked they've been on the watch, one or the other of them, night and day.
Almost as if they suspect. I use
—it's too big a risk. Can't you wait?"

Reluctantly he nodded. "I'll have to, I suppose." He began restlessly moving about the cabin again, then he asked, "How soon do you start flying mail to Winnipeg?"

"As soon as the ice is thick enough to land on skis."

"Good. You've got a job the very first trip. There's a picture hidden away in Alec's cabin—an old picture of a group of aviators in the first World War, and one of the men in it looks like Dove. I wanted to turn it over to the Army when I was in Winnipeg, but hadn't a chance. I can't trust it to the mails, but we've got to get that picture traced. It's going to be your job to take that picture down and get it into the right hands—someone we can trust to follow through and keep his mouth shut."

"Then I think I know where to take it—to Colonel Dowling in military intelligence. He was up here with his daughter last summer. I guided them. He'd be safe, Colin."

Blair's voice was recapturing its old eager ring, and her eyes were bright again with interest.

Looking down into her darkly glowing eyes, Colin pondered; because of one woman he had almost decided to quit Learmonth; because of another, he knew he would not go. Whatever the future might hold, he and Blair were allies.

"You look so serious." Her voice brought him back.

He laughed. "I was thinking that there's no one in the world I can confide in so completely as I can in you. You're a grand pal, a—"

She laid her hand against his mouth. "Call me 'little sister'
again, and I'll scream."

That night the storm broke.
Howling down from out the north,

the first great winter blizzard
whipped across the land, driving men and animals to shelter. Steadily, through the night, the temperature fell, and all next day no living high amid the spruce clumps, and ice crept out from the shallow waters of the shoreline to meet across the channels, covering rivers and lakes with an ever-thickening cap that would soon become a highway for trapper and hunter.

By early morning of the second day the snow had ceased, and torn clouds revealed the cold, sparkling stars, but hour by hour the grip of winter tightened, and with the sunrise Learmonth looked out upon a changed white world—the winter
world of the North.

The day after freeze-up, Colin turned the photograph over to Blair, and on her first trip to Winnipeg she had delivered it into Colonel Dowling's hands. "He's having copies made," she told Colin.
"He wants to send one of them to London. It may be two or three weeks before we hear anything."

Colin nodded. "The minute you do hear, fly over to the cabin. And remember, if Dove makes another night trip, let me know. Until then, the safest thing for us is to work at our jobs. Your job is flying the mail; mine is trapping."

And the next day he and Alec began to trap. Hanging his steel traps in heavy balsam smoke until the resin had obliterated all man scent, Colin began work ten miles back from his cabin, following a small stream that he had known in earlier days. The main trapping was for cross and red fox on the Upper Nelson, where Olsen had warned Alec to keep away. Alec himself was plainly nervous when they entered that forbidden territory.

"What happens if we meet Olsen?" he asked once.

"That," Colin answered, "depends on Olsen."

Before many days, their lines extended for miles along the streams and up over the ridges, while the great white calm of winter lay across the land.

Colin chafed because nothing was happening. No word from Winnipeg about the photograph; Dove showed no signs of resuming his midnight trips up the lake, and two weeks had passed since freeze-up.

Then, without warning, on December 7, the settlement was shocked by the news flashed up from Winnipeg—the Japanese had attacked the American fleet at Pearl Harbor. Colin heard it late that afternoon from a trapper, and his mind flashed back to the map he had seen in Dove's secret room; it had been a map of Pearl Harbor.
The other map had shown the Atlantic coast; would that mean an attack there by the Germans?

Hurrying to Learmonth, he questioned Selkirk and Blair about Dove's activities. But there had been no change. Beyond expressing profound horror at the Japanese treachery, Dove went quietly on preparing his school for Christmas.

Select Committee To Survey Area For Post-War Plans

intendent of public schools, was presented as chairman of the Bucks County Committee.

Mr. Boehm outlined the six areas in Bucks county, namely—Quaker-town, Sellersville-Perkasie, Doyle-town, Langhorne-Newtown, Morrisville-Yardley, and the Bristol area.
The importance of the Bristol area in comparison to the other part of the county was stressed, and the need for such an organization here

It is to be the function of the committee here to interview industrialists and business men in an effort to learn what their needs will be after the war, and what plans
they are contemplating. By this it is reasoned that a picture of the
"after-the-war" scene can be obtained and that such will aid in the solution of the anticipated problems.

Many industries, small businesses and individuals plan repairs and improvements after the war and these will necessitate manpower and materials. It is such projects as these that will aid in maintaining high levels of employment and cushion the drop from war peak employment.

Cooling Desserts For Warm Weather Days

On these hot weather days, do you let the sun do the broiling, while you tuck something cold and frosty into the refrigerator to tempt heat-wilted appetites? First aid in your campaign to outwit the thermometer is that cooling fruit—the lemon. "Keep a bag of lemons on hand" is the best of hot weather advice. Then you always have the "makings" for temperature-reducing drinks and foods—lemonade, fruit punch, lemon dressed salads, and desserts such as the following:

Lemon Gelatine Chiffon Pie
Perhaps this recipe is already in your files. With eggs plentiful, now's the time to serve it. It's mighty good on a warm summer day.

1/2 cup lemon juice
1/2 teaspoon salt
3/4 cup sugar
4 eggs
1 tablespoon (1 envelope) unflavored gelatine
1/4 cup cold water
1 teaspoon grated lemon peel.
Cook lemon juice, salt, 1/4 cup of the sugar and the egg yolks in a double boiler until of custard consistency. Soften gelatine in the cold water. Add to hot custard and stir to dissolve. Add lemon peel. Cool. When mixture begins to thicken, fold in the egg whites, stiffly beaten with 1/2 cup of the sugar. Fill a baked or crumb pie shell, 9-inch size, and chill. Top, if liked, with sweetened whipped evaporated milk, just before serving. Sprinkle lightly with additional grated flakes of lemon peel.

Cereal Pie Shell
2 tablespoons melted butter or other shortening
3/4 cup finely crushed corn flakes
1 tablespoon sugar
1 tablespoon water.
Add butter to cereal, tossing lightly to mix. Dissolve sugar in

Lemon Frozen Cream Sundaes
Instead of serving plain ice cream, treat your family to a sundae dessert these warm evenings and see how surprised and delighted they will be. The recipe that follows is for a no-cream ice cream made with lemon juice and top milk. Corn syrup is used for part of the sweetening. For the sundae topping, use caramel syrup, corn syrup, maple syrup, or sweetened fruit—peaches, strawberries, bananas.

2 eggs
1/2 cup sugar
1/2 cup light corn syrup
2 cups top milk
1/4 cup lemon juice
1 teaspoon grated lemon peel.
Beat eggs until lemon-colored. Add sugar gradually until mixture becomes a thick, custard-like consistency. Combine with remaining ingredients. Freeze in refrigerator tray at lowest temperature until stiff. When frozen, remove to a cold bowl and whip with an electric or hand beater until light and creamy. Return quickly to freezing tray. Finish freezing. This one stirring is all that is needed. Hold at middle control for serving. Makes 1 quart—serves 6 to 8.

Beef Balls

Faith Clarke's SHOPPING TIPS FOR BUDGETEERS

DON'T RUN SHORT of vegetable seasonings. When you can't get fresh onions, parsley, celery, etc., you can now get them in boxed flakes, very, very cheaply. They're dehydrated, of course, and delicious when water returns them to their natural, practically fresh form. The Snellenburg Food Shop on Chestnut St. is noted for its use of seasonings and sauces, so that the dehydrated flakes are only part of a tempting story. The flakes are priced as follows—boxes of onion, 10c each, $1.19 a doz.; parsley, 9c each, $1.05 a doz.; celery, 9c each, $1.05 a doz.; mixed vegetable flakes, 13c per box, $1.55 a doz. Try them and then order in dozen lots for convenience. (1st fl.)

GRAND TOWELS—turkish, Marlex, just right weight, $1 each for bath size, 22x44 in.; 50c for generous hand size; 19c for face cloths; matching bath mats, $1.59. Beautiful shades of green, peach, rose, blue, gold covered with a brocade design of white flowers. I was delighted to be told about these, just as I am sure you are. I hope you get some! Snellenburg Towel Dept. (2nd fl.)

THE VERY THING—an outdoor card-table set with an iron frame and a glass top, and handsome! The comfortable, artistic iron-framed chairs—four of 'em—have tied-on canvas seats and backs. Use the set on the lawn, the porch, in the house. It looks extra smart in all three places. Well worth $49.98 a set. Canvas comes in beautiful sport colors—strawberry red, sun yellow, the right blue, etc. Use for games or feasts! See these sets in that fine grouping of outdoor furniture on the Snellenburg fourth floor.

HOSTESS GIFTS abound in the China and Glassware Dept. of the Snellenburg Store. None is prettier, however, than the sparkling glass or gay, painted china and pottery candy jars and boxes on one particular table. Their prices range from $1.39 to $7.49. There's a wide variety—including clear crystal and both pale cranberry and deeper ruby glass. Also there are pretty glass violin-shaped boxes, in colors. Some of these several fascinating containers are quite modern, others charming reproductions of antiques. Every house should have one or two candy jars, yours included. (3rd fl.)

P.S. Shop at this friendly store—Market from 11th to 13th, thru to 1125-29 Chestnut St., Phila. Or order by mail. Or 'phone free (5c, 10c and 15c out-of-town calls only.) Clippings appreciated. Penna. number, ENterprise 10160; New Jersey, WX-1150. Cheerio! Faithfully, FAITH

AN OLD FAMILY CUSTOM is being revived—that of ordering or taking home candy for the week-end. It sweetens dispositions and creates good cheer and I'm all for it. The Snellenburg Candy Dept. in the Market St. Store is famous for home candies. Just now, among other luscious goodies, you may order or buy real paper-shell Jordan almonds at $1.50 a lb. (these make swanky hostess gifts, too!); full cream vanilla or chocolate fudge at 79c a lb.; chocolate and vanilla cream caramels at 79c a lb.; melt-in-your-mouth mint bubbles (light as air), 49c for a generous-size box; English-style toffee, separately wrapped, and in several flavors, at $1 a pretty box of 1 1/2 lbs. (1st fl.)

OUTDOOR ENTERTAINING always makes a hit. Guests fed on porch, lawn or in the woods will remember your hospitality longer than formal, expensive entertaining. Even a city backyard should have its grill, and just the family will enjoy using it frequently. The Snellenburg Outdoor Furnishings Dept. has the best assortment of grills I've found—both simple and more elaborate table types. Some of the prices are $5.95, $16.95, $52.50, $77.50. The two latter models have stone tables, and the $77.50 one has a roasting spit that turns! Add to your summer enjoyment, (4th floor)

A WEEK-END presents for your hostess, or for your own dressing table, is the charmingly packaged combination of LaCross glycerated polish remover in double-size bottle, and a regular-size bottle of LaCross color-perfect nail polish, plus two manicure sticks. All in a peasant-decorated cardboard cart. The polish may be exchanged for any shade. Charming? $1 and 20c tax. Snellenburg Toiletries Dept. (1st fl.)

BOY OR GIRL in the Service will appreciate a present of 100 Chesterfield cigarettes accompanied by a nifty wind-proof pocket lighter, plus 15 extra flints. This is practically a year's supply of flints. The attractive lighter and packet will be mailed free the world over by the accommodating Smoke Shop on the first floor of the Snellenburg Store. $2.20. Send or give the Service person's complete address. The Shop will inclose an attractive gift card with your name upon it.

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS

war but that isn't so. The war is the excuse for his candidacy and the war, along with himself as "Commander in Chief," will envelop this convention from the start. It will saturate the platform and highly flavor every speech. Nothing will be left undone to rivet the wholly unsound but plausible argument that the winning of the war depends altogether upon the re-election of the "Commander in Chief." But, once the Commander in Chief is renominated it will be seen that the reliance for his election is not upon the war argument at all, but upon certain very concrete and easily recognized political assets that have nothing to do with the war.

ONE HAS ONLY to circulate around these Chicago hotels to understand what they are. It isn't only that the presence of the CIO lobbyists and the professional liberals at once recall Attorney General Biddle's famous declaration that "the New Deal is a political party tied in with the labor movement under an able political leader," but there are conspicuously in evidence others whom the idealistic Mr. Biddle did not mention but who nonetheless represent the indispensable political base upon which the Roosevelt chances rest. Important among these are the hard-faced, extremely practical bosses from New York, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Jersey City, and generally unsavory machine Chicago, Albany and other large cities, who have waxed fat on Federal patronage for the past 12 years and are strongly averse to any change in the Presidency. —O— THEN, THE presence of many high Federal officials recalls the fact that there are now on the Federal payroll more than 3,500,000 persons—a vast increase since 1940—an increase which the practical politicians say to a large degree compensates for the old WPA, a conceded factor in the Roosevelt elections of 1936 and 1940. In addition, of course, there are in the country a great many emotional people to whom Mr. Roosevelt is a shining hero and who are unwaveringly for him regardless of what he is, or says, or does. Take all these elements represented here—the labor bosses, the city machines, the State machines, the Negroes (who though far less solid than in 1940 are still favorably inclined), plus the President's personal emotional and unreasoning following, and the formidable nature of his support for a fourth term must be conceded. IT IS NOT surprising that confidence is pretty high here, nor that the betting odds favor the fourth term. But, among some of the wiser of the practical politicians there is an undercurrent of apprehension. These recognize the danger of holding on to high office too long. They know that resentments rapidly accumulate each year and that a point can be reached at which the people become just "fed up." They concede the possibility that the point may be reached concerning the Roosevelts in November. A good many by-elections and the general Republican trend of the last two years give some ground for thinking so. It is the sort of thing that can't be told until the votes are counted, but it is the real Roosevelt danger. It easily could wipe out all his assets.

PITTSBURGH—(INS)—Marriage was the latest adventure of Pvt. Jose P. Tugab, 23, thought to be the last survivor of General MacArthur's Scouts in the Philippines. The young Filipino, who fought on Bataan and escaped from a Jap ship, married Betty Wilson, 23, of Pittsburgh.

The proudest title in the Army

It CONSISTS of two simple words. Yet every soldier who's worth his salt covets it. This title is simply: "Good Soldier." It isn't just happenstance that so many women in the WAC have earned this title—the proudest in the Army. For wherever Wacs are working, both here and overseas, there you find a job well done. And done with a spirit so gallant and fine that high Army officers everywhere say of the WAC... "They're soldiers. Good soldiers!"

Lord, open our eyes! While we are here in this place of shadow and gloom and trial, help us to work steadily, bravely, hopefully; may we not mourn as the pagans do, falling down with fear in the day of adversity; in that day make us strong, that in its darkness we may illustrate Thy grace and the fullness of Thy love. Direct all men who are in perplexity, comfort all who are in sorrow, give rest to those who are weary, too weary to pray; and give comfort of a special kind to those whose griefs are of the heart, of the spirit, which cannot well be spoken, and yet which tear the soul and wound it, and fill it with despair. We pray in Jesus' precious name. Amen.

SMOOTHNESS SECRET IN FROZEN DESSERT: KEEP CRYSTALS SMALL

By Mary Jacoby Fleetham

(Home Economics Representative)
Though whipping cream is still war short, homemade ice cream and similar frozen desserts may be features of family meals this summer if the cook knows how to use thin cream or milk in mixtures that will freeze successfully. Such frozen desserts may not be so rich or quite so smooth as those of pre-war days made largely of whipping cream but they can be refreshing and delicious.

The important secret of smoothness in a frozen dessert is keeping the ice crystals small. The larger the crystals, the rougher and icier the product. The water in the mixture is what freezes and forms the crystals, so smoothness depends on distributing the water in separate fine particles. Air bubbles whipped in help to do this, as does the fat in the cream and thickeners like gelatin, eggs, flour or cornstarch. Frozen custard is a good choice this summer when eggs are plentiful. The egg yolks help thicken the mixture and the stiffly beaten whites add air bubbles just as whipped cream does.

Several tips for making mixtures that will freeze smoothly in refrigerator trays are: When more thin cream is used, more thickeners are needed; To keep crystals small, the mixture may be taken from the refrigerator when partly frozen, whipped, and then returned for final freezing. Rapid freezing also helps keep the mixture smooth, so the freezing compartment of the refrigerator should have as little frost on it as possible and the cage should be set for a low temperature.

Most housewives have discovered that the cream at the very top of the bottle of milk is thick enough to whip. Just one cup of this thick cream is enough for a vanilla ice cream mixture to serve 6 or 8 people.

For the recipe file:

Vanilla Ice Cream

1 1/2 cup milk

1 cup cream whipped

1/2 cup sugar

2 eggs

1 teaspoon gelatin

1 teaspoon vanilla

Mix milk, sugar, egg yolks and gelatin. Cook to custard and cool.

SEVEN RUNS IN FIFTH AD IN WIN FOR FLEETWINGS

Airplane Builders Defeat Rohm & Haas By Score of 10 to 5

CONNECT WITH 16 HITS

Eachman and Calderone Divide Pitching Chores For the Winners

TRENTON INDUSTRIAL LEAGUE
Schedule for Tonight
Rohm & Haas - Eastern Aircraft
(Wetzel field, Trenton)

Seven runs in the fifth was enough for the Fleetwings team to add another game to its list last evening as it took the Rohm and Haas nine into camp, 10-5, on the Maple Beach field.

The winners made a total of 16 hits off the two Rohm and Haas hurlers, Ray Ulin and Paul Calderone. Eachman and Cy Bachman led the hitters by getting a triple and two singles. Dougherty also had three hits.

Bachman and Sammy Calderone divided the pitching chores for the winners and held the Maple Beach aggregation to nine hits. But it was the relief hurling of Calderone that stood out.

Calderone went in to pitch in the sixth. Runners were on second and third at the time with one out. He passed Nocito purposely to load the bases and then whiffed both Testi and Keegan to end the inning. During his tenure on the hill he struck out six batters, walked one, and Nocito got a single in the eighth for the only hit against him.

During the fifth inning flaresp when seven runs were pushed over the plate, eleven batters stepped up and six delivered hits. Two others were passed.
